

09/9/16/19

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A scanning exposure apparatus and method in which an interferometer, operatively connected to a stage holding a mask or a substrate, outputs a measurement value corresponding to positional information of the stage in the scanning direction. Start and stop timing of the output of trigger signals for the emission of pulses of an exposure beam emitted at predetermined time intervals is controlled based on the measurement value from the interferometer.